We encourage all members to contribute to the awards program by nominating suitable candidates
 When nominating please think about people who may have been overlooked in your discipline

Over the past years the fraction of awards and medals obtained by women has increased.

Great news!!!

This is in part from the increase in nominations.

As the largest geoscience meeting in Europe with 14,000 onsite and 3,000 virtual participants expected this year, the EGU General Assembly has a huge range of scientific sessions that enable participations to gain a greater understanding about specific topics both within and outside of their research area. But more than this, there are also plenty of non-scientific sessions that participants can attend to learn new skills, expand their network, and diversity their expertise. In the lead up to #EGU23, this month's blog post will highlight some of the event's exciting science for policy sessions that will outline how scientists can more effectively contribute to policymaking processes, connect with decision-makers, and have a policy impact!

EGU Position Statement on the inclusion of global research in the geosciences

“EGU’s vision is to share, publish, promote and collaborate on the latest geoscience research. This extends to raising awareness of potentially exploitative practices that are often referred to as ‘helicopter research’ or ‘parachute science’.

These take place when researchers from (often higher-income or more privileged) settings perform research in resource-poor settings with limited to no involvement of local communities or researchers. Such practices may be considered ‘scientific neocolonialism’ as they take advantage of local infrastructures but do not contribute to the inclusion and equal acknowledgement of local researchers. They also lead to the lack of recognition of the value of local knowledge and expertise for enhancing geoscience research.

EGU strives to raise awareness of such imbalances in global research through our diverse activities such as:

- organizing spotlight sessions, debates and symposium dedicated to these issues during the EGU General Assembly and other geoscience conferences.*
- encouraging the inclusiveness of authors and their contributions in presentations, publications, policy reports and data products to give due and full credit for all contributions, and appropriately documenting such participation”*

Comments/action items from the DM attendees

- Consider feedback on EDI titles and logos. Some thought that the ones showed may be controversial so should be discussed.
- New members for some of the positions (e.g., Outreach) should replace existing ones.
- Consider in the future meetings to mention the awards from other Copernicus journals.
- Leave more “floor time” for questions & comments from the participants.
